

REPLACEMENT ABSTRACT

Protective pants having an outer part and an inner part each of which include two mutually opposite side parts engaged to a central part, wherein the central part is made with a first and a second elongated section, the first elongated section being longer than the second elongated section and joined to the second elongated section on the front side of the protective pants.